Community Youth Corps Program Model

Program Description

Our youth program, Community Youth Corps (CYC), prepares teens (primarily ages 13-15) for future employment by providing opportunities to earn 75 or more service learning hours while working in branches and the Central Library. Students are placed in selected branches and receive training in web page design, library and research skills, customer service and team building. Students in turn use those skills to provide a service to library patrons or create a program/product for public use.

Description of Model

Under the auspices of Enoch Pratt Free library (EPFL) the Community Youth Corps program provides quality service learning experiences, training and skill development to Baltimore City teens (primarily ages 13-15). Students typically enter the program in 8th grade, participating in activities and interactions that support their positive development through the 10th grade.

The intended outcome is youth entering the workforce with basic computer and software literacy, customer service skills, skills in working with library patrons, experience working in teams and a portfolio of completed work assignments and evaluations.

Youth/Internship Shadowing

6 month volunteer period (75 hours minimum-100 hours maximum)

- CYC youth participants work individually as part of a library team. Students are assigned to a specific Pratt staff member whom they job shadow. The teen assists this person, carries out tasks that are relevant to his/her job experiences and learns the ways in which this person's role contributes to the functioning of the library. To provide additional variety and experience for teens, we recommend the site coordinator devise a rotating schedule to allow teens to shadow different library staff members at different times.
- Offering suggestions to library customers searching for information using the Internet or Online Public Access catalog
- Basic equipment troubleshooting
- Assisting Pratt Technology Training staff with training sessions for library customers on using the Online Public Access Catalog, word processing and the Internet
- Using the technology to produce materials for the library (i.e. web page content, newsletters, etc.).

Job Types and activities for CYC youth participants:

- Evaluating the condition of library materials
- Placing library materials on the appropriate shelf, in the proper order to maximize access
- Collecting stray library materials from tables and other public areas
- Reviewing the placement of materials on the shelves to ensure they are in the correct location
- Assisting customers in completing application forms for new library cards
- Helping customers sign-in for computer use
- Advising library staff on collection development in the teen area

Clerical Shadow

- Evaluating the condition of library materials when returned
- Participating in the processing of library materials
- Preparing new books for circulation
- Answering directional questions for library customers
- Taking customers on tours of the library and explaining library policies

Children's Librarian Shadow

- Assisting and reviewing homework of elementary school-aged students
- Constructing craft items and designing coloring projects
- Reviewing children's books, including writing a brief annotation and indicating target age/level
- Signing in children to use the Whole New World or Kid's Corner Desktops
- Reading to children and listening to children read
- Creating artwork for the children's area

Y/A Reference Librarian

- Assisting library customers with their use of the library's Online Public Access and word processing facilities
- Offering useful suggestions to library customers searching for information using the Internet
- Assisting with the development, organization and promotion of programs in the library
- Providing tours and informational presentations to the public
- Surveying youth customers about favorite books, videos, music and magazines to assist in collections

Computer Assistants (would apply if)

- You have a number of terminals with Internet access, word processing and the library catalog
- Your staff has the technological expertise to train CYC youth participants and college staff
